I am honoured to share my Experience of participating in the State-Level "Saksham Mahila, Samruddha Sahitya Dindi" Wari, organized by the National Service Scheme (NSS), Savitribai Phule Pune University (SPPU) Pune, in association with the Higher and Technical Education Department, Government of Maharashtra, and the Student Development Board. This Special Wari was conducted from 19th July to 25th July 2026, following the traditional route from Pune to Pandharpur.

The main objective of this programme was not only to preserve the spiritual tradition of the Wari but also to promote the social messages of "Swachh Wari, Swasth Wari, Nirmal Wari, Harit Wari, and Pustak Wari." Through this initiative, NSS volunteers were encouraged to serve society by spreading awareness about cleanliness, health, environmental conservation, education, and social responsibility while experiencing the rich cultural and spiritual heritage of Maharashtra. As an NSS volunteer, I proudly represented my college in this prestigious state-level event. It was a memorable journey that helped me grow physically, mentally, emotionally, and spiritually.

Participating in the Wari was one of the most memorable and life-changing experiences of my life. Walking for several kilometres every day with thousands of Warkaris taught me the importance of Discipline, Patience, Determination, Teamwork, and Selfless Service. Despite physical tiredness, everyone continued the journey with faith, enthusiasm, and devotion towards Lord Vitthal.

One of the most meaningful activities during the Wari was the Tree Plantation Programme at Kade Pathar Jejuri. Along with NSS volunteers, I participated in planting saplings to spread awareness about environmental conservation. This activity taught me that serving nature is also a form of serving society. It inspired me to take responsibility for protecting the environment and motivated me to continue participating in such initiatives in the future.

Another unforgettable experience was interacting with the Warkaris. We spoke with many devotees from different parts of Maharashtra and learned about their journey, their faith, and their philosophy of life. Most of them told us that the Wari is not just a pilgrimage but a way of life. They explained that Lord Vitthal teaches values such as equality, humility, honesty, patience, compassion, and devotion. They believed that by remembering Vitthal and serving others, a person can find true happiness and inner peace.

Listening to their experiences made me realise that spirituality is not only about rituals but also about living with kindness, helping others, respecting everyone equally, and remaining humble in every situation. Their positive attitude, despite many hardships, inspired me to become mentally stronger and more grateful for what I have. One of the most meaningful activities during the Wari was participating in the Swachh Wari (Clean Wari) campaign. As NSS volunteers, we actively took part in cleanliness drives at several locations throughout the journey. We cleaned the Palkhi Thal (resting places of the Palkhi) after devotees had completed their meals and rest. We collected plastic bottles, paper plates, food waste, and other litter to ensure that the places remained clean and hygienic for everyone.

Apart from the Palkhi Thal, we also carried out cleanliness drives on roads, public areas, and campsites where Warkaris gathered. We swept roads, collected waste, separated biodegradable and non-biodegradable garbage wherever possible, and encouraged people to use dustbins instead of throwing waste on the roads. Through these activities, we spread the message that "Cleanliness is a form of service to society and to Lord Vitthal."

During the Wari, our NSS team stayed at different colleges and educational institutions arranged by the organisers. At every place where we stayed, we took responsibility for maintaining cleanliness before leaving. We cleaned classrooms, playgrounds and the surrounding campus, ensuring that we handed over the premises in a neat and orderly condition. This taught us the importance of respecting public property and maintaining discipline wherever we stay.

We also interacted with Warkaris and local residents, requesting them to avoid using single-use plastic, dispose of waste responsibly, and keep the Wari route clean. Many people appreciated our efforts and joined us in maintaining cleanliness. These experiences showed me that even small actions by a group of dedicated volunteers can create a significant positive impact on society.

Through these cleanliness drives, I learned that social responsibility begins with personal responsibility. Keeping our surroundings clean not only protects the environment but also reflects our respect for society, nature, and our cultural traditions. This experience has motivated me to continue practising cleanliness in my daily life and inspire others to do the same.

The Wari also gave me the opportunity to interact with students from different colleges and people from different backgrounds. This helped me improve my communication skills, leadership qualities, teamwork, time management, and problem-solving abilities. Living together, sharing responsibilities, and supporting each other taught me the value of cooperation and unity.

The devotional atmosphere filled with Abhangs, Kirtans, Bhajans, and the continuous chanting of "Vitthal Vitthal" created a unique spiritual environment. It filled me with positivity, peace, and motivation. The simplicity of the Warkaris and their unwavering faith taught me that true happiness comes from contentment, discipline, and selfless service rather than material comforts.

Along with the tree plantation programme at Jejuri, interactions with Warkaris, and various NSS service activities We also participated in a Pathanatya (street play) based on the theme "Saksham Mahila, Samruddha Sahitya". Through this performance, we spread awareness about women's empowerment, the importance of education and literature, gender equality, and the valuable contribution of women in building a strong society. Performing in front of Warkaris and the public helped me overcome stage fear, improved my confidence, public speaking, and teamwork skills. It was a wonderful experience to use art as a medium to deliver an important social message. The positive response from the audience encouraged us to believe that awareness and social change can begin through simple yet meaningful performances.

Overall, the Wari was not only a spiritual journey but also a journey of personal growth, environmental awareness, social service, leadership development, cultural learning, and self-transformation. The lessons and experiences I gained during this journey will remain with me throughout my life.

The Wari has brought many positive changes in my thinking and behaviour, and I am committed to continuing these values in my daily life.

I will maintain Discipline, Punctuality, Honesty, and Responsibility in my studies as well as in my personal life. I will actively participate in NSS activities and continue serving society whenever possible.

I will contribute towards making my surroundings cleaner by avoiding reducing plastic usage, planting more trees, and encouraging others to protect the environment. I will also spread awareness about cleanliness and public health in my community.

The Wari taught me to remain calm, patient, and positive even during difficult situations. I will try to control my anger, respect everyone equally, and help people without expecting anything in return.

I will continue improving my communication skills, leadership qualities, teamwork, and physical fitness. I will also maintain a healthy lifestyle and develop habits that improve both my physical and mental well-being.

Most importantly, I will always remember the values of Humanity, Unity, Equality, Simplicity, Selfless service, and Devotion that I learned during the Wari. These lessons will guide me in becoming a responsible student, a good citizen, and a better human being

Conclusion

The State-Level Saksham Mahila, Samruddha Sahitya Dindi Wari was a life-changing experience for me. I sincerely thank Savitribai Phule Pune University (SPPU), the National Service Scheme (NSS), the Higher and Technical Education Department (उच्च व तंत्र शिक्षण विभाग), the Government of Maharashtra, Principal Dr. Shriram Kulkarni Sir NSS Programme Officer Prof.R.P Rajput Sir , and all the organisers for giving me this wonderful opportunity.

This journey has taught me that true education is not limited to classrooms—it is also learned through Service, Discipline, Culture, Spirituality, and Real-life Experiences. I will always carry the values and memories of this Wari throughout my life and continue to serve society with dedication and sincerity.
